

H&O

H&O is an independent publisher founded in 2015 by author/journalist Michael Hingston and designer Natalie Olsen. In a world where print material is rapidly losing ground to all things digital, H&O remain stubborn, true believers in the power of the physical book. Titles are driven by design and full of the unexpected. H&O exists to publish books that surprise and delight, and to foster a community of readers who are passionate about the future of literature and the many forms it might take.

High Profile

EDITED BY Michael Hingston

RELEASED 2021 PAGES 224

High Profile: Accordions, Fur Pillows, Neck Workouts, Unexpected Nudity, Olympic Medals, and Other Takeaways from the Best Celebrity Profiles in Recent Memory is our ode to the sometimes-misunderstood, occasionally maligned, but never-ignored type of journalism known as the celebrity profile. Contains 10 individually bound booklets, on figures ranging from Rihanna to Roger Ebert, inside a deluxe box set. With original portraits by Paul Thurlby.

Projections

EDITED BY Rebecca Romney

RELEASED 2020 PAGES 272

Projections is an anthology of science-fiction stories that in some way predicted life in the present day, from climate change to global pandemics to the new faces of fascism. Edited and introduced by renowned rare-book dealer Rebecca Romney, this collection spans the genre's rich, diverse history, and includes writers like Mark Twain, J.G. Ballard, and Octavia E. Butler. Collectively, these pieces help illuminate both past and present alike.
